Pullman, WA – CourseCo, Inc has named Jeremy Wexler as new Director of Golf at Palouse Ridge Golf Club.

Wexler, a Class A PGA Professional, has been a long time member of the Palouse Ridge Golf Club staff, serving as Head Golf Professional since the opening of the renowned John Harbottle III designed golf course in 2008.

"Jeremy has demonstrated excellent hospitality and a customer service mindset during his time at Palouse Ridge," said Michael Sharp, President and CEO of CourseCo, one of the largest golf management companies in the Western United States. "I am excited for this opportunity for Jeremy to grow professionally with our organization at a golf course where he has a long and successful history."

Jeremy is a graduate of Washington State University and has immediate plans to take this leadership role and further concentrate on maintaining the strong attention to detail and customer service that has long set Palouse Ridge Golf Club apart from its competition.

"I'm very proud to be able to lead what I consider to be one of the top golf experiences in the country," says Wexler, who will look to further the long history of accolades received by the golf course through the strong partnership between Washington State University and CourseCo.
